The invention relates to a process for the preparation of alkoxy or aralkoxyphosphines or a mixture of them. Hitherto known processes for the preparation of alkoxyphosphines or aralkoxyphosphines from alcohols and dialkyl or diarylphosphines are not suitable for being applied as a process for the preparation of alkoxyphosphines or aralkoxyphosphines on an industrial scale. A large number of processes are known for the preparation of alkoxyphosphines or aralkoxyphosphines from alcohols, dialkyl or diarylphosphines and alkali halides. Although the reaction proceeds in good yields, the known processes have the following disadvantages: A. As a rule, metal halides, such as alkali halides, are used as the reagent. If the reaction is conducted under pressure, this has the disadvantage that the residues cannot be taken off at atmospheric pressure in a simple and economical manner. In addition, the reactions are not suitable for the preparation of trialkoxyphosphines or triaryloxyphosphines, since the alkali halides are too reactive to be used as reagent in these cases. PA0 B. The starting materials used, such as dialkyl or diarylphosphines and alcohols, are not available in large quantities and must be obtained from other sources in a correspondingly complex manner. PA0 C. The reaction mixture is worked up with difficulty since it consists of an equilibrated mixture of the alkoxyphosphine and the alkali halide. In particular, the complex formation of the alkoxyphosphine and of the alkali halide is difficult and expensive to control, if, for example, high-boiling phosphine-containing and -containing compounds are used as the starting materials. From now on, swinging couples have a wider choice of toys, more advanced techniques, and other added options that allow the time they spend with their partners to go even further. One of the things that have attracted people to these toys is the fact that they are so small and they

A US service member died after shooting himself in the hand by accident, according to authorities in Djibouti. The incident occurred on Friday. The service member was stationed in Camp Lemonnier for the US Africa Command (AFRICOM). The base released a statement saying that although the US serviceman was not injured or killed, the incident became critical when it was discovered that he had wounded himself with a self-loading rifle. "When he pulled the trigger, the service member misfired the weapon and fired the round into his right hand," said the statement. "He was taken to Djiboutian medical facilities and is receiving medical attention," it added. US Africa Command said that it was considering the implications of the incident and its jurisdiction within the camp. The statement said the US service member was the only service member at the base at the time and was not in any military or public safety facility. "A special investigation will be conducted and we will work with authorities to address the situation," the AFRICOM statement concluded./* * Licensed to the Apache Software Foundation (ASF) under one or more * contributor license agreements.
